

We have just received the following updated information from SFMTA regarding the re-opening of roads post- Super Bowl events. Please note that we have been working with SFMTA and the information we sent you this morning stating detours and reroutes would remain in effect until Saturday was current information at the time.

*Statement from SFMTA Director of Transportation
re: Early Opening of Roads Post Super Bowl Events ****

San Francisco—Ed Reiskin, Director of Transportation of the San Francisco Municipal Transportation Agency (SFMTA), today issued the following statement as streets surrounding the Super Bowl City site will be opened Thursday evening – a day early. Muni service will resume its normal schedule and routes Friday morning.

“I want to thank the businesses, residents, employees and everyone traveling in the area for their patience and for helping us make Super Bowl 50 a great success for our City. I appreciate all those who chose public transportation to get around during Super Bowl 50, including the 200,000 additional riders who boarded Muni during these extraordinary events. City staff kept our streets safe and moving during this extraordinary time, and I appreciate their professionalism and hard work.”

These areas will be opened Thursday evening:

- Market Street between Beale and Steuart streets
- Southbound Embarcadero between Washington Street and Don Chee Way
- Spear, Steuart and Main streets between Market and Mission streets
- Intersections of Main, Spear, Drumm, and Steuart streets at Market Street

On Saturday and Sunday, the F Market lines will operate by bus shuttle due to additional work near Steuart Street. The E line will run as normal during this time.
