

How to: Utilize Google During the Coronavirus Outbreak

Building on our Thoughts and Tips from TMA SF Connects Staff piece, the How to: series looks to expand on some of the topics presented previously.

Everyone's familiar with their primary services like Google Search, Gmail, and their productivity suite like Docs, Sheets, and Slides. For those in education, Google Classroom and Google Scholar may be commonplace, helping teachers transition to or maintain an online school setting in the former and assisting students with researching academic articles, abstracts, and books in the latter. But have you heard of Grow with Google? It is a resource that allows you to grow your business and career with free as well as paid trainings, workshops, and certifications. TMA SF Connects staff has compiled some other Google applications and products that may help you and your family past the time!

Google Arts and Culture

Featuring content from over 2,000 museums and archives, including 360-degree videos, high definition artworks, and street views of famous sites. The Explore section also features "experiments" with online puzzles, visual crosswords, coloring books, and quizzes. Arts and Culture was easily a favorite among TMA SF Connects staff.

Google Doodles

Google may not have an extensive section to learn about history as it does arts and culture, but Google Doodles does offer children and adults alike an opportunity to glimpse and learn more about international events, holidays, and birthdays. These Doodles were all created and used in different parts of the world as the logo on Google's homepage, some of which features animation and games!

Google Duo

If you're an Apple/Android user and your friends and family are quite the opposite, this may be the Google product for you. Google Duo is a free video calling app that works with Apple products like iPhones and iPads, Android phones and tablets, computers, and smart displays

Think with Google

Think with Google is an informational resource that shares with organizations and professionals best practices and data trends to take their marketing to the next level.
